There were moments, though, of recurrent interest, with Devore doing most in the recurrence.

Josh can't hit lefthanders, and in order to prove that he can't he biffed Mattern for a home run in the first inning. Before that south aw was taken out of the box in the third inning Devore hit him for a two bagger, and having acquired the mania uncoiled a second home run in the sixth, this one off Griffin. A blend of fast running by Devore and slow fielding by Pfeffer enabled Josh to make a home run of this hit, which wouldn't have been one with a regular man in the outfield. Devore also made a tidy catch, and last but not least in his day of assiduity he circled the broad highway four times.

Marquard's sprightly mentality did the Bostons out of a run in the first inning. Bill Bweeney reached second on an infield hit and a sacrifice and tried to score when Miller outfooted hit to Merkle. Marquard covered the bag, but Miller beat Merkle's throw. Sweeney rus ed for the plate, but the eagleeyed Rube had his cagle eye on him and threw him out. Devore's four bagger in the first inning found lodgment in the right field concrete. A base on balls to Doyle came next and a hit to right by Snodgrass next. Snodgrass's hit went through Miller's legs and Doyle came around. Snodgrass surged to third and Sweeney made a wild throw there to stop him. The ball struck Steinleid to the finger and so damaged the digit that Steiny retired to the operating room. Snodgrass kept on to the plate.

Devore's two bagger in the second ingular was not of the conventional kind.

posed the New York nine, but the simple tact that the Rustlers couldn't hit at all with men on bases while the New Yorks did a good deal of timely hitting explains the ratio of 9 to 1 on the Boston side as compared to 14 to 3 for New York. Whenever Marquard put on pressure he made the Rustlers throw away their bats. High popfies and strikeouts were Boston's destiny when the Rube meant business.

The Bostons played a bungling and apathetic sort of game, they affording reason for some hitarity, but all chance for excitement vanishing early in the contest. It was merely a romp for the Giants, who put as much ginger as was necessary into their play but didn't have to put in much. There were moments, though, of recurrent interest, with Devore doing most in the recurrence.

Long Branch, N. J., Jaly 1.—Mayor Gaynor's son-in-law, H. K. Vingut, saw his colors borne to victory at Elkwood Park this afternoon when his noted mare Waterspeed won the Elberon handicap steeplechase. Waterspeed was splendidly ridden by H. L. Bell, the well known gentleman most popular incidents of the first day's sport under the auspices of the Elkwood

Walter Lewisohn is the president.

On the way the wheels bumped over some ruts and Capt. Thornhill of the Pinkerton service was thrown off the footboard. As he fell his face collided with the back of the declared an extra dividend of 130 per cent. wagon and his nose was said to have been broken. Noe did not regain consciousness for fifteen minutes. He had a deep gash in his head, but after bandages had been brought into play he was able to limp away. Waterspeed won this race by sheer game-

Waterspeed won this race by sheer gameness. Far West running in the name of Mr. Archdale, fought it out with ner a greater part of the distance, about two miles and a half. Rounding the far turn for the last time they were neck and neck, both under a terrific drive. Waterspeed lasted better and won by a length and a half. Far West was two lengths in front of Malcolm Stevenson's Ontario.

August Belmont's silks flashed in front when M. J. Tucker rode the Hastings gelding Raymond home in the combination plate at about seven furlongs on the flat. Raymond got off slowly and was caught in a jam until the middle of the backstrech was reached. There Mr. Tucker shot him through an opening and with a great turn of speed the Belmont racer breezed in front all the way to the end to win by four lengths. Wells Clarke's Left Over, a surprise, romped into the place, with E. J. Hogan's The Thief third, beating Morgan D. Blair's Adele C. a nose.

Ss Potsdam, for New York, was 210 miles south east of Cape Race at 5:26 P. M. yesterday. CAPE MAY RACES. Five Motor Boats Start, but Salling

Yacht Event Did Not Fill. Another evidence that yachtsmen seek variety was given in the efforts of the National Yacht Club to start sailing yachts and motor boats over a Cape May course. club, which was formerly the Brooklyn Yacht Club, held a race for sailing craft three years ago for a cup donated by Sir Thomas Lipton. It filled well and the cup was won by Shamrock, owned by Frederic Thompson. The next year the race was not so popular. Last year only three yachts and each owned by a club member started. This year but one yacht showed up at the starting line. That was the Ediana, formerly Butterfly, owned by John A. Crowley, with Commodore Walter Sullivan of the Har-lem Yacht Club and Walter Murray Bieling on board. L. S. Herzig's Gardenia and Dr R. von Foregger's Adyta II. had been announced as entries. Gardenia was absent and Adyta was at her moorings. Mr Crowley declined to take a sailover. This is the second long distance event that has failed this year. The other was the Bermuda rase. A well known yachtsman who likes these long distance races said yesterday: "If the clubs want these events to be successful they must give some variety and change the courses. Yachtsmen like car seems and change."

day: "If the clubs want these events to be successful they must give some variety and change the courses. Yachtsmen like we see see and change."

The race for motor boats attracted five entries. When the regatta committee, Peter Bentley Harvey B. Griffin and Daniel of the Sim Too, owned by Vice-Commodore. A. C. Soper, was missing. That yacht has deranged her steering gear and a post-ponement was asked for to make repairs. The starting was set for 11:30, and by that time Sim Too was ready.

The Clarinda, owned by R. S. Mills of the National Yacht Club, was first across the line and she had her sails set. Sim Too was next and then came flys, also with sails. Carolina and Caliph. The course is first to the Southwest Spit bnoys, then to Scotland lightship, then to Fire Island lightship, then to the Northeast End lightship of Cape May and return over the same course as far as Scotland lightship. Each vessel is to take its own time at each lightship and at the finish. The distance is 31s miles and at the finish. The distance is 31s miles are as follows:

The racers will probably finish this race early to-morrow morning.
